The Nature of Ash

Mandy Hager

Ash McCarthy thinks he finally has it made, revelling in the freedom of student hostel life. But life takes a devastating turn when two police officers knock on his door.

Their life-changing news forces him to return home and impels him into a shady world of political intrigue, corruption, terrorism and lies . . . so many lies.

As if this isn't bad enough, the whole country is imploding, as the world's two greatest super-powers start a fight that leaves New Zealand 'piggy-in-the-middle' of their deadly games. While trying to protect his brother Mikey, along with strangers Travis and Jiao, his fight to uncover the truth turns into a nightmare race to save their lives.

The Nature of Ash is a fast-paced thriller that explores love and loss, assumptions and prejudices, truth and fiction, and the many faces of 'family'.

Mandy Hager is a Wellington writer and educator. She won the Esther Glen Medal for Fiction in 2008 with her novel Smashed, and the 2010 NZ Post Children's Book Award for Young Adult Fiction for The Crossing.

Before reading

1. What does the cover picture indicate about the book's content?
2. When and where might the story be set?
3. What does the title suggest to you?
4. Read the author's dedication (p. 5). If you wrote a book, who would you dedicate it to and what would the dedication say?
5. Where is the quote on p. 7 taken from? Why do you think the author chose it? What is its significance? Answer these questions again once you have read the book.

Language

1. What do you think the genre of this book is? List the aspects that are indicative of this genre.
 - 'lynch mob' (p. 128)
 - 'in limbo' (p. 128)
 - 'rednecks' (p. 129)
 - 'tiki tour' (p. 146)
 - 'blow her stack' (p. 174)
2. The story is told in the first person. Why do you think the author chose to do this? Was it effective? Choose a passage in the book and rewrite it in third person narrative.
3. Figurative language is used to convey ideas that might otherwise be difficult to express. Two examples of figurative language are similes and metaphors. 'He flaps his arms like a windmill' (p. 11) is an example of a simile and 'His tone is razor sharp' (p. 209) is an example of a metaphor. Find more examples of each type of figurative language from the book.
4. The author uses symbolism in the book. What are the phrases below typically symbolic of? What is the origin of these phrases?
 - 'sabre-rattling' (p. 10)
 - 'straight-laced' (p. 10)
 - 'six feet under' (p. 65)
 - 'heading for the hills' (p. 68)
 - 'turncoat' (p. 91)
 - 'sitting ducks' (p. 124)
5. The author uses personification to describe elements of nature. For example, 'Outside, the sun is setting, its orange fingers reaching back towards the clouds' (p. 123). Using personification, write a poem or descriptive paragraph about other forces of nature.
6. AKA, WA and UK (p. 8) are examples of what figure of speech? Find more examples of this figure of speech from the book.
7. Ash makes a pun about the UPR (pp 126–127). Think of three other examples of puns.
8. Jiao's father says, 'Before you embark on a journey of revenge, dig two graves' (p. 74) and Ash's father writes in his letter, 'From caring comes courage. Kia kaha' (p. 109). Is there a difference between a saying and a proverb? What do these sayings or proverbs mean? Where do they come from? Think of five other common sayings or proverbs and research them using these questions.

9. The author uses animal imagery in some similes. For example, 'about as scary as three wetas facing off a hawk' (p. 10) and 'he shrieks like a demented gibbon' (p. 57). Find other examples from the book. Then think of ten other animals and create a simile for each.
10. What is the literary definition of 'pathetic fallacy'? Find a moment in the novel where it is evident.
11. 'Brainwave' (p. 192) is an example of a blend or portmanteau word. What does this mean? Who invented the figure of speech 'portmanteau'? Find examples of some more blend words.
12. What figure of speech are the words 'smash' and 'bang' (p. 216) examples of? Find five more examples from the book. Write a poem or descriptive paragraph which includes these words.
13. Describe in a paragraph how the tension builds and falls away during the book. Find a passage in the novel that is high-intensity, and another which is low-intensity. Copy both out and compare the language used (choice of words, length of sentences, the pace at which details are revealed). How is language used to create intensity?
14. Find definitions for the following words from the novel and write one sentence for each:
 - adamant (p. 103)
 - acquiesce (p. 115)
 - cathartic (p. 120)
 - pontificating (p. 161)
 - altruistic (p. 168)
 - ominous (p. 168)
 - entropy (p. 170)
 - magnanimous (p. 183)
 - vindictive (p. 185)
 - feral (p. 192)
 - touché (p. 194)
 - lucid (p. 273)

Characters

1. Think of three adjectives to describe Ash, Mikey, Jiao, Travis, Erich and Grace.
2. List the qualities of Ash's personality and find examples of when he displays each of these qualities.
3. Choose an important event from the novel and describe Ash's reaction to it.
4. What do you think Ash learns in this book? How do you think he has changed by the end of the book? How do you think his view of himself has changed?
5. How does the relationship between Ash and Jiao develop through the book? What are the main events which contribute to the development?
6. What are the different pressures on Ash throughout the novel? What factors lead to the decisions he makes and how does he cope with the situations he finds himself in?
7. What does the novel say about friendships and/or family and their importance during difficult times? List examples of episodes when friends and/or family are either a help or a hindrance to Ash.
8. Do you think Ash is a realistic character? Why or why not?
9. Draw a picture of one of the characters based on their physical descriptions. You might choose one of the following:
 - Jiao (p. 19)

Comprehension questions

1. Ash states that New Zealand is 'clean, green and peace-loving' (p. 9). Imagine you have to set up an information booth for New Zealand or your local area at an international immigration fair advertising what New Zealand or your local area has to offer. What would your booth look like and what information would it contain?

2. Ash is studying at university to be a speech and language specialist (p. 10). What does this job entail? What job do you want to do? Where would you like to work? What qualifications will you need? What would the work entail? See if you can arrange to be an intern or shadow a worker at the company of your choice. Write a report of your experience and present it to your class.

3. After the news of the explosion, Ash's 'world shrinks down to random snapshots' (p. 14) and again on the train everything 'replays in jerky flashes' (p. 123). Choose either of these series of images and present them in a storyboard for a movie format.

4. As Ash drives back into Wellington there is a description of the city (pp 18–19). Find other descriptions of places that are mentioned in the book. Locate these places on a map of the relevant city and/or New Zealand. Choose one of the places mentioned. Create and design an entry for a travel book for your chosen place as it is today. Include information such as population size, geography, history, things of interest and weather. Compare these details with how the place has been described in the book. For example, the deserted town of Raetihi which Ash describes as being 'like the set of an old-time Western' (p. 178).

5. Jiao's 'la-di-da' books fall out of her bag (p. 20). Find and list all the books that Jiao reads throughout the novel. Choose one to do an author or book study on.

6. In the novel, citizens of New Zealand must conserve water and recycle (p. 26 and p. 60). Design a poster for a marketing campaign to inform the general public about these measures.

7. Ash finds only a few scrappy vegetables from the community garden in his dad's fridge (p. 25). In groups, design a community garden. Also research where the food you eat comes from. Is it local, imported, organic, ethical, etc?

8. The newsreader reads out about Ash's dad's 'life and times' (p. 50). Choose an important figure from your local area who has left a legacy and write an obituary.

9. Ash's dad launched a big campaign to reinstate the minimum wage (p. 70). Find out who protects the well-being of your community and write a formal letter to them about a community issue that concerns you. Research the procedures involved in lobbying against a decision that has been made for your community that you disagree with.

10. Mikey wants Ash to tell him the dragon story he made up when Mikey was small (p. 78). Write, illustrate, design and bind a children's book based on a story about a dragon.

11. The PM calls an emergency sitting of parliament and is considering martial law (pp 79–80). In groups, write a script for how this parliamentary sitting might have proceeded, then act it out.
12. The warship Ash and Jiao see in the harbour has the insignia of the Western Alliance on its stern (p. 83). Design this insignia as well as one for The United People's Republic.
13. Ash states that following another explosion 'It's like watching a movie that's thrown in every special effect it can afford' (p. 93). Find another war movie that is full of special effects, such as Tomorrow When the War Began. Write a comparative review.
14. The author writes a descriptive passage about the state the city is in (p. 94). Draw the scene. Then choose another one of the descriptive passages in the novel which you find particularly effective and use it to set the scene or the mood for your own piece of descriptive writing. Quote the passage as the epigraph for your work and clearly state the source (title, author, publisher, date, chapter and page number).
15. Ash reads some poetry to his grandmother and notes that its 'funny how words take on a different meaning, depending on the time and place they're used' (p. 100). Choose an important event in your life and find or write a poem that somehow reflects this event and your feelings about it.
16. Ash has a strong memory of when his grandmother was 'still full of life' (p. 100). Write a descriptive paragraph about one of your favourite memories of a member of your family.
17. Ash is given a letter from his dad (p. 105). Imagine you are Ash and write a reply.

- 'Money should never be the referee of what is wrong or right.' (p. 68)
 - 'Education is the key to everything.' (p. 107)
 - 'Free speech is only tolerated when it suits those in charge.' (p. 109)
 - 'If you've got a gun, one day you're going to use it.' (p. 257)
 - 'History's just one bloody war after another.' (p. 281)
 - 'Freedom has a very thin veneer if you look too close.' (p. 334)
39. Design your own cover for the novel, including the blurb.
40. Do you think the novel would make a good dramatic film? Write a letter in support of the film for possible investors. Look at some movie posters. Notice the pictures and the words. Design a movie poster to advertise the film.
41. Write a dramatic monologue from Ash's point of view, retelling the experiences he's had in the novel including his discovery that Grace is alive. Perform it for the class.
42. Do you think there could possibly be a sequel to this book? What do you think could or should happen in it? Write a one-page outline of the plot for the sequel you would write. Choose a title.
43. Find other books which have young adult characters dealing with war. Write a comparative review where you compare and contrast The Nature of Ash with at least one other novel dealing with this theme.
44. In groups, create a timeline that shows the main events of the novel.
45. In groups, discuss one of the following questions.
- When was a positive or negative view of humanity and/or society successfully portrayed in the book?
 - When did the settings help develop the themes of the book?
 - When was an internal and/or external conflict of a character reflected in the book?
46. Write a diary entry from the point of view of Ash, Jiao, Ana or Jeannie about one of the main events in the book.
47. Rewrite one of the climactic scenes as a video script. If your school has filming equipment, produce your scene.
48. Write a review of the book, aiming it at the readership of your favourite magazine, newspaper or website. Consider the following questions.
- What situations had a ring of truth for you?
 - Which characters appealed to you the most? The least?
 - How did the story make you feel as it unfolded?
 - What ideas in the book awakened your interest?
 - What did you dislike, or find boring?
 - Did the ending surprise you?
